Helping families to cut costs and cut carbon – one little baby step at a time!

Can your family meet the Baby Footprints Challenge?

It might be easier than you think!

The aim of the Challenge is to help you to select actions for you and your family which will reduce your carbon footprint by 10% – and reduce your household bills by hundreds of pounds.

Simple energy efficiency measures can save you an average of £250 in a year; you can cut your car fuel costs by 15% by adopting a few simple tips too and reducing your household waste can also save you lots of money – £200 a year; for example, by switching to real nappies instead of disposables!

Baby Footprints will provide the information you need to work out which actions you can take to reduce your carbon footprint.

Baby Footprints will also offer a range of cool incentives to help and inspire you including a fantastic Real Nappy Pack with a range of cute, convenient and quick drying modern washable nappies (available absolutely free on a long term loan). You will also receive a free ticket to the Highland Baby Show in October 2011 in Inverness and a range of discount vouchers for products and services to help you in your Carbon Cutting quest!
