

What is Gopr:

The Getting Our Priorities Right (Gopr) framework is a crucial part of Scotland's child protection system. It provides guidance and tools for practitioners working with children and families affected by parental substance misuse.

Learn more

1. Parental substance misuse and social worker intervention | Iriss

2. GETTING OUR PRIORITIES RIGHT \(Gopr\) - gov.scot \(www.gov.scot\)

Conclusion:

The Getting Our Priorities Right framework is a vital tool for safeguarding children and supporting families in Scotland. By prioritising early intervention, collaboration, and family empowerment, Gopr strives to create a safer and more nurturing environment for vulnerable children.

Key Aims:

Promote the safety and well-being of children: Gopr prioritises ensuring children's safety and development, even when their parents struggle with substance use.

Early intervention and prevention: The framework emphasises early identification and support for families at risk, aiming to prevent harm before it occurs.

Joined-up working: Gopr encourages collaboration between different agencies and professionals involved in a child's life, fostering a holistic approach to support.

Empowering families: The framework recognises the importance of supporting families to address substance misuse and build their capacity to care for their children.

Core Principles:

Child-centered: All decisions and actions should prioritise the best interests of the child.

Proportionality: Interventions should be proportionate to the identified risk and tailored to the individual needs of the child and family.

Partnership: Effective collaboration between professionals, families, and communities is essential.

Information sharing: Sharing relevant information safely and securely is crucial for coordinated support.

Support for recovery: Parents struggling with substance misuse should be offered support and opportunities for recovery.

Key Components:

Assessment and planning: Practitioners use a structured approach to assess risks and develop support plans for children and families.

Information sharing and consent: Clear guidelines are provided for sharing information safely and ethically, respecting families' rights.

Working together: collaboration between child protection services, adult support services, and other relevant agencies.

Training and development: Ongoing training is provided to ensure practitioners have the skills and knowledge to implement the framework effectively.

Impact and Challenges:

Gopr has been credited with improving outcomes for children affected by parental substance misuse. However, challenges remain, such as ensuring consistent implementation across Scotland and adequately resourcing services. (see learn more link 2.)

7 Minute Briefing